

What happens when a Python program runs

A program is a sequence of state changes; the screen shows only the observable effects.