

A function connects inputs, a process, and one returned result

Define once -> call many times. Printing shows a value; returning lets later code use it.